

When someone breaks in to your home, or you are involved in a domestic abuse situation, picking up a phone and calling 911 isn't the most ideal way of alerting someone you need help, especially for those who fear it could escalate the current situation they're stuck in. GameSafe is an alert system disguised as a "game" so you can send out a call for help without tipping off your intruder/ abuser of your actions

Features:

- Ability to trigger a variety of alert messages sent out to chosen contacts along with your current location.
- Access users contacts
- Access users location
- Access users camera and microphone to allow the option to record the situation at hand as evidence in the future if needed
